Smuggling Conspiracy.

Men Tracking the Swindlers.

a Full Confession.

[SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.] CHICAGO, Dec. 15, -- A special from St.

Paul, Minn., says: The United States Secret Service officers here are on the track of a gigantic opiumsmuggling conspiracy. They have learned that an organized and well-equipped band of smugglers has for years been operating across State the costly and high-tariffed drug. One of the gang was arrested recently at Denver, Col., and he made a full confession. Acting on the information given by him the deputy collector at St. Vincent, Minn., went west to a point on the Dakota line on Wednesday last and interrupted a wagon-load of 800 pounds of opium in the crude The opium in the wagon was concealed under a layer of buffalo hides. The whole outfit was seized, and the driver of the wagon was arrested. The authorities here maintain absolute silence when asked for the full details of their important discoveries, but do not deny the story of the arrest at Denver and the subsequent seizure at St. Vincent. They freely admit the existence of a smuggling conspiracy, but go no further.

There is every reason to believe in the light of recent developments that a quarter of all the opium which has come into this country in the last five years has been smuggled in over the unguarded and unsettled bender. border.

Tons of opium are sent in every ship from China which lands at Victoria, B. C., and it is an easy matter for the smugglers to bring it to some point on the Canadian Pacific road.

it to some point on the Canadian Pacific road anywhere between Calgary and Winnipeg and cart it down into the Territories.

"Bulldog" Kelley, the man who was arrested at St. Vincent for murdering a man near Calgary, and whom the United States Government refused to give up to Canada, makes no secret of the fact that he had been engaged in the smuggling of opium.

It was over the division of the profits of a smuggling enterprise that he killed his man. They had a train of pack-mules and brought the opium on mules' back from Calgary down through the mountains to Butte City, Helena, Bozeman and other Territorial railroad points, where it was disposed of by shipment to Eastern points.

The business is so systematically conducted and such violent oaths for secrecy exacted from those engaged in it that they laugh at the law.

BILL CLARK BESTS JOE COBURN.

The St. Louis Exhibition Was Ludicrous and the Spectators Had a Good Laugh.

ISPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD. 1 St. Louis, Mo., Dec. 15 .- The twenty minutes sparring match for points between Prof. "Bill" Clark and Joe Coburn took place at the Natatorium last night before a good house.

Clark's gray whiskers were a spectacle, and his appearance was so ladicrons that the crowd almost went into convulsions.

The old man started in with blood in his eye. He feinted, danced, ducked, and got in a clean lefter, while Joe reiterated. He never touched me. Only a a minute was left when they faced each other for the last round.

It was enough for old Bill, for he got in his right and left in succession in ten seconds.

Result—Clark, 4 points; Coburn, 2.

Young Mrs. Samuels?

United States Secret Service Every Moment of His Time She Was a Passenger on the Um-Seemingly Accounted For.

One of the Gang Is Arrested and Makes | The Result of an "Evening World" Reporter's Investigations.

> "You are mistaken, lady. I swear it." "You are mistaken, lady. I swear it."
> These were the earnest and imploring words used by Frederick Witte, at Police Headquarters yesterday afternoon.
> Mrs. Sarah Samuels, of 193 Houston street, had just picked him out of a line of twelve men and positively said that he was the man who robbed her in her flat a few hours before.

Frederick Witte, whom Mrs. Sarah Samuels claimed to identify as one of the men who assaulted and robbed her in her flat at 193 West Honston street, has been held for an examination to take place to-morrow morning.

The story of the assault and robbery, as narrated in yesterday's Evening World, was so remarkable in its circumstances that a reporter started on a tour of further investigation this morning.

At the house in Houston street, the reporter found Mr. Samuels, sr., and Samuels, jr., in a terrible state of excitement. Samuels, jr., husband of the woman who was struck and robbed, firmly believes his wife's statement of the occurrence, and said that the house had been entered on Wednesday afternoon, about 4 o'clock, but that nothing had been taken but a wardrobe key. Thursday the men came to finish their job and partially succeeded.

Mr. Samuels said that Witte lived in Housson street about three years ago, and right scross the street, and asserted that Witte knew the family well, as every one in that neighborhood does.

He then called Mrs. Samuels into the room-

She is a tall, slim woman, about twenty-three years of age. It struck the reporter that she appeared to be dazed and frightened, and she sauk into a chair and listened listlessly while her husband told of the assault. Not a par-ticle of excitement was visible on her fea-tures, but her body twitched convulsively. The reporter asked if she was cold.

"No," she replied, "I am nervous. It is natural with me. Her skin was as fair as a baby's, and not a mark or discoloration was visible on her face. "Where did the robber strike you?" asked the reporter.

"Right here," she answered placing the tips of two fingers on her temple and along-side of her right eye.

Before Mr. Samuels had entered, the re-Before Mr. Samuels had entered, the reporter put the same question to the husband, and he replied that there was no bruise or discoloration, as the robbers had struck her on the fleshy part of the faco.

Mrs. Samuels said that the robber wore a blue shirt. Witte wears a gray one. She cannot be shaken in her conviction that Witte is the man who struck her.

Mrs. Samuels said that she had found a

Mrs. Samuels said that she had found a piece of paper lying on the floor in the bed-room after the man had disappeared. It contained these words printed :

'Joe, come around the corner.' This paper is in the hands of the detectives, whom the reporter was unable to find this morning. Leaving that vicinity and coming down to the County Court-House, where Witte was employed as fireman, the reporter started to trace Witte's movements from noon on Coburn seemed in good shape, but high living in the West had adorned Clark's front with a bay window that he found impossible to remove. Nevertheless, the old man was anything but superannated.

Harry Morris was referee.

The appearance of the men caused great shouting, and while the gloves were being blackened enthusiastic friends offered many suggestions. Coburn assumed his old-time "shifty" attitude, while Clark kept his hands well down on the bay window and his head back.

After a few minutes 'sparring Coburn led with his right, but was short, Clark was as lively on his feet as a colt, and after four minutes he dashed his left clean and full on Joe's nose, and left a black mark as big as a hat. "He never touched me, "cried Coburn, but he was ied this corner and Clark was given a point.

In the second round there were clever stops and ducking, when suddenly, after a break away, bang went old Bill's left agrain on Joe's nose, and the crowd laughed itself hoarse, while Joe said, "He never touched me."

About this time, Witte was again seen by Mrs. Phalen, who was going to the grocery store. She saw him come from Sommers's saloon, walk up Roosevelt street and go in the direction of the place where he was working.

Colter, his fellow-workman, says that Witte arrived a few minutes before 1 o'clock witte arrived a few minutes before 1 o clock, and as it takes ten or twelve minutes, easy going, to walk from Sommers's saloon to the Court-House, every minute and every doing of Witte between the hours of 12 and 1 o'clock is accounted for in these stories of different people.

Mrs. Samuels says that just before she left by kitchen she glanced at the clock. It mitted at about 12 35 o'clock.

At that time Witte was in Sommer's saloon, according to the bartender, and five minutes later he was seen on Roosevelt street, going in the direction of his work.

A Mrs. Callagher Sailed from Here on the Umbria.

[SPECIAL CABLE TO THE EVENING WORLD.] QUEENSTOWN, Dec. 15. -Some excitement was created here by the arrest of one of the female passengers on the steamer Umbria, which arrived this morning.

When the boat containing passengers reached the shore the authorities, who were in waiting, arrested a woman whose name was ascertained to be Gallagher, and upon searching her fifty cartridges were found concealed in her dress.

It is not known as yet how the police bacame possessed of their information but that they were in full possession of all necessary facts was evident from the quiet, confident manner with which the arrest was made. She was taken before a local magistrate and remanded, It is understood that the cartridges contain dynamite.

The police refuse to give any information

At the offices of the Cunard Steamship Company, Bowling Green, nothing had been heard from Queenstown except the safe arrival of the Umbria.

Mr. Vernon H. Brown, the agent, was greatly surprised at the news which be received from The Evenino World reporter. It was learned that John and Bridget Gallagher sailed from this port on the Umbria. They came here from Cleveland, O., and bought their tickets in that city.

O'Donovan Rossa was found by an Evenino World reporter on the top floor of 25 Beekman street, where he prints and publishes his paper. He received the reporter cordially, but not effusively.

'Do you know a Mrs. Gallagher, Mr. Rossa?''

Rossa?" I know two or three of them," was his evasive reply.

Sullivan's $5,000 Forfeit Money Still Remains Alone.

Jake Kilrain's Representatives Brought Cash Around.

But When a Receipt Was Refused,

They Took It Away Again,

Another scene in the Sullivan-Kilrain farce vas enacted this morning in the Clipper office on Centre street, when Kilrain's representatives. Messrs. Clark and Rac, of the Police Gazette, went there with $5,000 in their pockets to cover Sullivan's forfeit money. They also had with them a voluminous document expressing Jake Kilrain's ideas for the match.

The greater part of this statement was devoted to a denial of Sullivan's right to call himself or sign his name as champion pugilist of the world. Then it is remarked that Kilrain accepts

Sullivan's challenge, but shall insist on his right to name the day and place of the battle right to name the day and place of the battle. The statement also says that the battle shall be for $5,000, the championship of the world and the Folice Gazette diamond beit.
Charley Colvin, sporting editor of the Cipper, took the forfeit money and Kilrain's statement, and as he put them into his desk Mr. Clark remarked that he and his fellow representative would like a receipt for the money.

"I cannot give you a written receipt," said Mr. Celvin. "If you have got to have that you had better take your money.

The Kilrain men insisted upon having a written receipt, and offered to sign an agreement that the fact of the receipt having been given should not be revealed by them, but to no purpose.

Mr. Colvin positively would not write a receipt, and Kilrain's representatives pocketed their cash and went away.

Even if they bad left the money, the matter would not have been satisfactory to Sullivan, for he will pay no heed to the diamond belt and stipulates in his challenge that the battle shall be for $19,000 a side and as much more as Kilrain's friends wish to put up.

Yesterday afternoon Charley Mitchell said to an Evenino Woston reporter that the challenge would be accepted as it stood—$5,000 would be put up as forfeit money, and he would arrange the rest when he returned from his Western tour.

Arthur T. Lumley, of the Illustrated News, who represents Sullivan's backers, said:

"We did not insist on a receipt for our $5,000 forfeit money. We deem an acknowledgement in the Chipper of the receipt of our money to be a sufficient guarantee that the money is there and in safe hands."

"Who do you think put up the money this morning for Kilrain and then took it down again?"

"I think it was Mr. Fox, by all means,

"I think it was Mr. Fox, by all means, and I think that he was made to do it by Mitchell and Kilram. With all respect for Mr. Fox. I do not think that the law has been

Mr. Fox. I do not think that the law has been the only reason for his besitancy in coming to the front at once. I think it is because of Kilrain's treatment of him in the preparation for his fight with Jem Smith, last year.

"Mr. Fox has made Kilrain. That will not be denied. When they went to Europe, Kilrain and Mitchell combined, and the result was unreasonable demands on Mr. Fox for extra expenses, before the fight took place, so that it cost Mr. Fox a large amount of money—nearly $20,000, I betieve. I was Mr. Fox's managing editor at the time.

"I think that if Mr. Fox thought this fight would cost him only the stakes he would would cost him only the stakes he would not have hesutated, or Kilrain's representanot have hesitated, or Khirain's representa-tives would not have insisted upon a receipt for their $5,000."

Mitchell and Kilrain left this morning for Chreago. Mr. Fox said that Kilrain's repreentatives will do as they like about the NO TRACE OF FORD.
